It does bother me that XMradio customers have to worry about the NAB wanting to interfere with this new form of radio. I'm glad that I live in a country where we should not have to worry about progress in technology. That is what makes our country strong. The folks at NAB should not feel threatened by XMradio. There is certainly room in the field for this form of state of the art communication. I've been noticing lately how the commercials on TV are increasing. It looks like close to 20 percent or more at times. I am an XMradio subscriber and feel that maybe later we will see commercials on this form of radio. I think back when cable tv started, they stressed in their promotions that we could expect very little commercials. RIGHT!!!! ????? and the world keeps on turning.

Sincerely,
James Kain
